

How To Not Steal A Creative's Work

Our Deep Guide For Not Stealing Another Person's Work:

no

Yes. - Well! Well!
You brilliant
observer/creator like
us. Welcome aboard

Did you just stumble upon or create a brilliant piece of work/art?

yes

Yes. - Well! You brilliant observer/creator like us.
Welcome aboard

no

Hmmmm. We are watching you

Was it created by you during the day?

yes

Awesome buddy!!
You rock. Tell us about it here.

no

Excellent, excellent.
You'll need to show
us proof

So, did you mistakenly create it in your sleep?

yes

Wow! We want to be like you when we grow up

no

We just knew you were lying all along. How Pinocchio'd is your nose
right now?

If you mistakenly created it in your sleep, can we see it?

yes

Awesomeness

no

Fantastic! We love you for not taking credit for another person's work

Did you imagine it in your head a few years ago, but forgot to create it and now someone else's created it?

errrm, yes

Okay, sorry you didn't seize the opportunity.
We know how that feels.
It's still not yours though

of course not

Thank you, you truthful person. Now proclaim the real owner

Did someone else create it & then mistakenly say you are the author/creator?

yes

Really? Really?!
You are going with
this narrative?

no

Thank you.
Move along

Are you a twin?
Did your twin create it?

yes

It's still not yours

no

Awesome! Stay in your beautiful lane.

Are you mixing up your identity with someone else?

yes

Yes. - Ah! See us
behind the camera

Whatever you do, don't take the credit for another person's work.

for Creative
Girls.